School of Child Daycare

Discover how you can make good money doing what you love most...
being a mom!

Dear Friend,

What would you do if you had to choose between your children and your career?

A crazy question? This is, unfortunately, a choice many mothers in this country must face. For many, staying at home to care for their children just isn't an option. They need the money.

And no wonder – raising kids is expensive! The federal government estimates that the first year alone costs $5,490 to $11,320. To raise a child through age 17? The averages run as high as $269,520!

When mothers need jobs, children need care.

These days, working parents are the norm. 30% of children grow up with single parents who have to work. For the other 70% who come from two-parent homes, two incomes are increasingly a must.

It used to be that relatives, often grandparents, could carry some of the child care burden when the mother entered the workforce. But this option isn't available to many families anymore. Families today are spread across the country, and many nearby relatives are already busy with their own jobs.

This leaves many children in need of quality child care services.
